Unique Drainage Solutions for Denmark’s Largest Spa and Wellness Area at Alsik Hotel

Case story: An ultramodern hotel in Sønderborg in a stylish, Nordic design requires the right stylish, high-quality drainage solutions.

What the Customer Needed

The hotel was designed by Henning Larsen Architects in a modern Nordic style and has become a significant landmark for the new district, which is under development on the waterfront in Sønderborg.

The hotel includes a huge wellness area with more than 60 different spa and wellness experiences diffused over 4,500 square meters and four floors. At the hotel, you can also treat yourself with gastronomy in a class of its own in Hotel Alsik’s three restaurants, all developed and run by a known Danish top chef called Jesper Koch.

Such a modern building requires the right drainage solutions in stainless steel both in the spa areas and in the kitchen.

Solution

BLÜCHER was chosen for this prestigious project, as we were able to provide special drainage solutions for the entire spa area as well as for the kitchen section of the hotel.

For the spa areas, a double membrane solution was chosen plus one of BLÜCHER’s popular standard channel types with a TOKYO grating.

The advantage of the TOKYO grating is that you get a discreet high-tech look, where the same tiles as in the rest of the floor are mounted. In that way you get an almost invisible drain, which gives a very elegant overall expression.

Result (ROI)

The hotel has got stainless steel drainage solutions that fit exactly to their needs. A solution that architecturally matches the hotel’s look in terms of design throughout the wellness section, and in the kitchen, they have been given a drainage solution that effectively removes water, is hygienic and easy to clean.
